Bachelor of Science in Human Development and Family Sciences – Child Development, Northern Illinois University

Kaylee Rhodes is a certified developmental therapist and evaluator in early intervention.. Kaylee graduated from Northern Illinois University with a Bachelor of Science in Human Development and Family Sciences emphasized in Child Development and a minor in Counseling. Additionally, she pursued a Master of Science in Applied Human Development and Family Sciences at Northern Illinois University where she earned an additional Graduate Certificate in Infant and Early Childhood Mental Health. During her time at NIU, Kaylee completed an internship where she taught at the college level and participated in other extracurricular activities and organizations. Kaylee also worked as a graduate teaching assistant at Northern Illinois University, where she collaborated with faculty and conducted research.

Kaylee was a childcare teacher at Dixon YMCA for four years, working with children ranging from two to twelve years of age and their families. During her final semester of undergraduate at Northern Illinois University, Kaylee completed an intensive practicum in the preschool room on campus where she collaborated with peers, created developmentally appropriate lessons, and built strong relationships with families. Her love for working with children started at a young age while babysitting on the weekends and looking after her younger siblings. As a developmental therapist, Kaylee will be focusing on the overall development of the child, emphasizing on their developmental domains, while working with the child's family.
